Detection of DT markers in blood; feasibility study
SOS Desmoide

The presence of these markers has been observed in a limited population. The aim is to see, on a larger population, whether this type of blood analysis can be used as a complement to biopsies for diagnostic and prognostic purposes. The validity of this technique has first to be confirmed. This project is led by Pr S. Salas (Timone Hospital, Marseille)